Graphic Art in Canada

A RETROSPECT

THE Canadian Society of Graphic Art, organized in 1904, boasts a lineage dating back to the "eighties," when the Toronto Art Students' League established the first society in Canada in the interests of Graphic Art. For twenty odd years it was the mainspring of artistic effort in this field, and in no small degree can justly claim a worthy place in developing creditably much native talent.

During the last twelve years of its activities the League published Annuals with illustrations by the members depicting various phases of Canadian life, and some of these original drawings are included in the present exhibition, to record this link with the past. When, through migration of many members to new fields of artistic endeavor, the activities of the League waned, the Mahl-stick Club, a junior organization, with the "lares et penates" of the older body bequeathed to it, carried on with a zeal which in a few years fired the ambitious members to seek new worlds to conquer, and the corporal's guard remaining formed a coalition with some of the old League members in 1904 as the Graphic Art Club. Meeting at first mainly for study in composition and for discussion, the group gradually, with increased membership, broadened out and organized regular classes for study from the life. With the authorization of the Royal Canadian Academy and an annual grant from that body since 1912, it has afforded facilities for study to all qualified artists and advanced students.

Exhibitions have been held of the work of the members from time to time, in their own club rooms, and the Graphic Arts section of the Canadian National Exhibition, inaugurated by request in 1909, has been sponsored ever since by the Society of Graphic Art.

This exhibition is the first endeavor to present, at the Art Gallery of Toronto, a collection of the works of Canadian artists in the illustrative and decorative field.

The Society of Canadian Painter-Etchers, an associated group, has five annual exhibitions to its credit, and the work of its members, and others invited to contribute, hang on the walls of the west gallery.
